RESEARCH

PUBLICATIONS

A note on authorship and contribution: Because this is my own curriculum vitae, my name is omitted from the citations below; co-authors are noted in parentheses. Much of my published research is co-authored, most often with Bernard Grofman. As is standard in political science, the order of authors does not necessarily reflect the relative size of each author's contribution. Across these collaborations I have consistently led the empirical work—research design, data construction, statistical and geographic analysis, and modeling—and contributed substantially to the writing. A description of my specific role on any individual paper is available on request.
